

Basketball Tournament was Popular Draw

One of the pleasant surprises at this year's Locust Blossom Festival, held May 28, was the popularity and crowd-attracting ability of a "three-on-three" basketball tournament held on a side street in downtown Kendrick. Both men's and women's games were held and drew teams from this area and out-of-town who played from early in the day until late afternoon, competing despite a wind and rain storm later in the day.

Video Series to Show at Assembly of God Church

The video series entitled, "Turn Your Heart Toward Home", will be shown at the Kendrick Assembly of God Church July 6 through August 10. The host on the series is psychologist and author Dr. James Dobson, president of Focus and the Family.

Dr. Dobson has been at the forefront of the fight for the family and family values for many years. He has been asked to serve on committees or commissions by the three United States presidents and on the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography. His daily broadcasts, "Focus on the Family", is heard on over 1400 radio stations in seventeen countries.

If you saw the first series seen by over 60 million people, entitled "Focus on the Family", you will not want to miss this view of parenting from the other side; when children leave home or are getting ready to launch out on their own. These six sessions will cover subjects like: parenting the young child and adolescent, the family and traditional family values, and how to overcome a painful childhood. No one can tackle these subjects quite like Dr. Dobson.

They will be shown each Wednesday night at 7:00 p. m. starting July 6th and running through August 10. Prepare now to be there, you will be glad you did.

The Present is a point just passed.

Old Time Fiddlers To Perform at Farmers Market July 17

Members of the Latah Old Time Fiddlers group will be an added attraction at the Kendrick Farmers Market on Sunday, July 17, market manager Christine Clayton said this week. The fiddlers are always a crowd-pleasing attraction and are expected to draw a large crowd.

Although the number of vendors offering produce was down slightly last Sunday because of the holiday, the market is expected to draw increasing growers and buyers as the local produce begins to mature. Those shopping for local produce may begin seeing lettuce, radishes, onions, cherries, summer squash and early produce begin to appear in addition to a variety of craft items. The market opens at 1:00 each Sunday afternoon in the Kendrick City Park.

Advance Registration For Fall Semester Possible at LCSC

A new process at Lewis-Clark State College is simplifying registration and providing students with immediate, confirmed class schedules long before the beginning of fall semester.

Installation of a new, campus-based computer system enables the registration process to be fully controlled locally rather than relying on a more cumbersome union with the University of Idaho's system as in the past, explained LCSC Registrar Jean Sass.

Because of the independent system, advance registration has produced record numbers and allows other returning students the flexibility of registering throughout the summer on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Approximately 1,600 students registered for fall semester classes this spring and another 121 new students—including freshmen and transfer students with fewer than 15 accumulated credits—completed the process during the first of several group registrations.

Another group registration is planned July 15 for participants in one of three special "learning communities" or those selected for the college's honors program. Orientation and registration activities will begin at 9 a. m. and continue throughout the morning and early afternoon.

Invitations already have been sent to honors program participants and members of the Nursing, Education or Student Support Services learning communities. Those who have not confirmed their participation in the July 15 session should do so immediately by calling the Office of Student Life/Advising, 799-2211.

Additional group registrations are scheduled July 22 and Aug. 5 for new students and those transferring with fewer than 15 credits.

Reservations are required in advance to enable the exchange of important information and to arrange for advising, said Pat Martin, director of student advising.

Students who previously attended LCSC, regardless of how long ago, must update their records in the Admissions Office and should call an advisor within the division of their major before registering. Those who are unsure of their major may call the LCSC advising office for assignment of an advisor.

Continuing students also may register any Wednesday or Thursday from 7:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. in Reid Centennial Hall on campus.

Aug. 12 has been reserved for registration of transfer students—those

Juliaetta Woman Won Idaho Writing Prize

Several months ago Mrs. Irene Lackey of Juliaetta received the first prize for her story published in the book "Idaho is Home", a collection of essays from Idaho residents about why they chose to come to the Gem State. The book, a beautifully crafted, soft-covered publication, was the result of newspaper surveys that asked people why they made their homes in such a seemingly remote place. The publisher, United Business Clearing House Publications of Boise, compiled survey answers from a cross-section of Idaho's people.

Mrs. Lackey's story, "Aunt Kate" tells of how she first met her husband-to-be, the late Edgar Lackey, while he was stationed with the army in her native England during World War II and her subsequent decision to travel to the United States where she and Edgar were later married.

This was Mrs. Lackey's first attempt at writing for publication, and she was amazed and delighted when her story was accepted for inclusion in the collection of stories. She even more thrilled when informed that her submission was judged best of all those in the book, and won a $250 first prize award.

Attempts were made by Phil's Food City of obtain copies of "Idaho is Home" for re-sale, but were unsuccessful. Bob Green of "Book People" in Moscow did have copies for sale but said he had sold out and was attempting to re-order.

More Youngsters Complete Summer Reading Program

The 1994 Summer Reading program continues through the month of July at the Juliaetta Library. There is still time to sign up and read until August 11 to complete the program. All those completing the program will receive a prize book of their choice and a folder from Washington Water Power Co. The Library will also hold a drawing for some extra prizes on Aug. 11th. Everyone who has finished by that date will be entered in the drawing. Prizes may be seen at the library. The special programs for the remainder of July are as follows:

July 7: "What is a Cat?" film and visiting kittens.

July 14: Native American storyteller.

July 21: "Pet Care" film and reptiles.

July 28: "Ponies" film and final party.

During the month of August the library will show special films every Thursday at 10:30.

Those children who have completed the program so far and received their prize books are: Laura Moran, Lindsey Liedkie, John Liedkie, Lynae Anderson, Justin Anderson, Michael Williams, and Garrett Brammer.

Library hours are: Monday 3 to 6; Wednesday, 3 to 8; Thursday 10 to 6, and Saturday from 10 to 12. Call 276-7071 for more information.

entering LCSC for the first time who have 15 credits or more at another institution. To register on that date, transfer students must complete the admission process and have official transcripts forwarded to LC by August 1.

The goal, explained Sass, is to have a many students as possible register before the traditional "last day of registration," preceding the opening of fall semester.

Advance registration provides students with significantly better class selection and eliminates the need for traditional "arena" registration. Gone forever will be the long lines, multiple stops for class stickers and the frustration of multiple closed class sections, Sass added.

Students who register this summer will know their class schedule immediately and will be able to complete the process in about five minutes or less on a "walk-up" basis, Sass explained.

Anyone who already has registered or expects to do so this month must pay his or her fees or make arrangements for fee payment by July 29. Failure to make those arrangements could render the advance registration void and require starting anew.

Those who register in Aug. should be prepared to pay fees or make fee arrangements at the time of registration.

The final registration for fall semester, along with orientation, testing and advising is scheduled Aug. 22-23. Classes will begin Wednesday, August 24.

Anyone with questions may call the LCC Student Life/Advising office at 799-2211 or the Registrar's office at 799-2223 week days from 7:30 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Meal Site News Notes—

By Marjorie Cobb
The last Wednesday of each month at the Meal Site includes honoring the "Birthday People" for that month, and on June 29 Paul Dammarell and Marjorie Cobb were the special people. Anna Fairfield was on hand to snap the pictures for June and also for May. Following the usual delicious meal prepared by Louise Pea and her crew, there was visiting, and more visiting, as there was no special entertainment that day.

Thirty-six meals were served, with 16 home deliveries, 3 non-seniors were served and 5 participants. Our Louise had a special treat for her diners on Friday, July 1, serving a special picnic lunch from paper plates to help remind everyone of the up-coming 4th of July holiday—Louise's young grandson was also present to enjoy the meal. Lucille Magnuson made all the announcements of important and ask-Alice and Viola to give their reports for the month of June.

There were 28 meals served that day at the Site; 15 home deliveries and 2 non-seniors. Tom Hanson received the Lucky Meal for the day.

Entertainment was provided by three piano solos played by Marjorie Cobb.

Not Much Rain in June

Except for about a week when the temperature rose into the nineties, the month of June was pretty much on the mild dry side.

Franwk Dammarell reported that he registered just 1.6 inches of rain for the month of June at his ranch on Bear Ridge. This is a below average amount of rainfall in what has been a dry year.

Thanks for the information, Frank.

THANKS FROM GLADYS W.—

I want to thank those who responded and transported me to the hospital last Friday. Thanks to Mike Tefft, Lori Brocke, Ginger Clemm, and Janie Ford. Your concern and care are appreciated.

God Bless.

Motorists Urged to Slow Down in Seal Coating Areas

To ensure Idaho's roadways live out their typical 20-year lifespan, highway construction crews across the state are out seal coating this summer—placing a thin layer of crushed rock and liquid asphalt over old pavement. Seal coating does more than save our highways. It also provides hundreds of jobs and saves billions in taxpayer money.

The placement of a seal coat over old pavement keeps water out of cracks in the road's surface, preventing the damage that occurs when water freezes, expands and turns a hairline crack into a full-blown pothole. Seal coating also prevents erosion to the road surface due to weather, and it aids vehicle traction. This preventative maintenance provides a smoother driving surface as well. The money it saves—$488,000 per mile—is another benefit.

"Seal coating means a savings to the taxpayer since it postpones the need to replace old pavement and is only a fraction of the cost of pavement replacement," said Keith Green State Highway Administrator for the Idaho Transportation Department. Seal coating costs during 1993 averaged about 12,000 per mile, compared to a cost of $500,000 per mile when seal coating is not done and the pavement is allowed to degenerate and must be replaced.

At current costs, over time, seal coating every mile of Idaho highway costs $2.44 billion less than replacing the pavement.

Seal coating is performed by private contractors, creating an estimated 600 jobs for Idahoans each year, according to transportation department figures. Indirectly, these dollars create almost 150 jobs as they spread through the state's economy.

This summer, over 500 miles of roadway will be seal coated. There are hazards to motorists driving through seal coating areas, like loose rock, oil and heavy machinery. To prevent damage to your vehicle and those around you, warning signs and reduced speed limits should be obeyed at all times.

"When motorists drive too fast through a seal coating area they can send rock chips flying, damaging vehicles and windshields," Jeff Stratton, Public Affairs officer said.

Seal coating operations now use smaller rocks than before, which provides greater protection against such hazards.

Traffic delays due to seal coating, when necessary, usually only last five to 10 minutes, Stratton said.

Prepare for the Quake Now

There have been so many warnings about an inevitable earthquake striking the Northwest, that maybe you've become calloused and ignored the calls to prepare. Or perhaps you're fatalistic and figure nothing you can do matters. It's true we can't prevent a quake from shaking us up. But what we do now may prevent discomfort, panic and injury when the quake hits, advises Dr. Thomas Pendergrass, associate professor of pediatrics at the University of Washington.

"You can make disaster preparation really complicated, or you can make it simple. I favor simple," says Pendergrass. "Think about what you'd need in an emergency—whether it's an earthquake, blizzard or power outage—and how you can use things around the house to take care of your needs for food, warmth and water. Also look around the house for safety hazards, things that will topple over and hurt someone or block exits when the house starts shaking."

Talk to your household about what to do in case of an earthquake and have a plan for reuniting your family, he advises. It's important to have a contact person outside the area, since it will be easier to telephone outside the stricken area. All family members (plus school officials and babysitters) should keep that number handy so they can call in their conditions and locations to ease each others' minds. Train yourselves about what to do during an earthquake:

- ◆ If inside, stand in a doorway or crouch under a sturdy desk or table, away from windows or glass. Duck and cover your head and neck. Practice this at home now.
- ◆ If outside, get away from buildings, trees, telephone and electric wires.
- ◆ On the road, stop in a safe area away from underpasses and overpasses. Stay in the car.
- ◆ Check your home now, Pendergrass advises, and eliminate hazards by anchoring heavy items like appliances, bookshelves and furniture, and installing latches on cabinets to keep doors from swinging open and hurling contents. Regularly test smoke alarms. Store flammable liquids in an outside shed or garage if possible.
- ◆ To help you get through the aftermath of a quake, NOW is the time to gather:
 - ◆ Portable radio with extra batteries.
 - ◆ Flashlight with extra batteries.
 - ◆ First aid kit, including eyeglasses and medicine your family takes regularly.
 - ◆ First aid book. Now is the time to refresh your first aid skills.
 - ◆ Fire extinguisher. Know how to use it.
 - ◆ Adjustable wrench for turning off gas and water. Learn how to do this.
 - ◆ Enough bottled water (two gallons per day for each household member) to last three days. Have iodine tablets or household bleach to purify water.
 - ◆ Matches and candles.
 - ◆ Cash (including change for pay phones, which will be restored to service faster than private lines). Credit cards and bank machine cards won't do you much good.
 - ◆ Non-electric can opener and canned and dried foods to last a week for your household. Rotate these provisions through normal meals so they don't go stale.

- ◆ Portable stove.
 - ◆ Telephone numbers of police, fire and doctor.
 - ◆ Plastic bags with ties to dispose of human waste if plumbing isn't usable.
 - ◆ Photos of family members to help identify and locate people if you are separated.
- Pendergrass suggests storing these items in backpacks, suitcases or boxes that can easily be carried if you have to evacuate. Store the items in a place likely to be accessible after a quake—not under the stairs or a back corner of the garage.
- After an earthquake, Pendergrass recommends:
- ◆ Wear sturdy shoes! There will Call Before You Dig!

WHO SHOULD CALL?
Anyone planning to dig or excavate could damage any underground pipes or cables at the site.

WHAT DOES IT COST?
Your only cost is the time it takes to make one toll-free phone call. For that investment of a few minutes, you will receive the following dividends:

- The peace of mind of having avoided the possibility of hitting a pipe or cable carrying gas, oil, or telephone or electricity which could be life-threatening.
- The satisfaction of contributing to lower utility rates by holding down repair costs.
- The appreciation of consumers in your area who will not have utilities interrupted by unnecessary dig-ins.
