City of Kendrick

The City of Kendrick wishes to express its appreciation to the members of the local Girl Scout Brownie Troop for their gift of a Crimson Queen Norway Maple tree.

The tree will be planted in Wallace Park in the West End of Kendrick so that all may enjoy its beauty.

I REMEMBER FATHER

Dad was a super father and fulfilled his every duty. He managed to please mom and would often praise her beauty. He remembered the lovely dress she wore on wedding day. He recalled the hours of honeymoon in a happy way. He knew his marriage was a blessed gift of fate. But every year he'd forget the anniversary date.

Grand Marshals of Kendrick Locust Blossom Festival

The true pioneer spirit of Kendrick was well-represented at the 35th annual Kendrick Locust Blossom Festival that was celebrated May 27, as Roberta Weeks Bingham and her cousin Robert McKee were chosen by the Veterans of Foreign Wars as Grand Marshals of the parade. It was a popular and well-deserved honor for these two, whose roots go deep into our area's history. Roberta is the daughter of Everett and Maybelle McKee Weeks and she has lived nearly all her life on Texas Ridge near Kendrick. Her great-grandfather, Alexander McKee, homesteaded on upper Texas Ridge in 1870. Roberta still carries with her a love for "the ranch," and the memories of her life there as a child and growing up.

She worked for twenty-eight years at Potlatch Forests, Inc., as a computer programmer before her retirement in 1979. She was affectionately referred to as "Blondie" by all her co-workers. She and her husband, Dick Bingham, are still actively involved in Post 3913 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Kendrick.

Her cousin and escort May 27 was Bob McKee, from the same pioneer stock that Roberta came from. Bob is a retired Forest Service employee who lives in Spokane.

Water Restrictions Set in Kendrick

At its meeting Tuesday evening, June 13, the Kendrick City Council voted to impose outside watering restrictions within the city limits effective immediately, reported city clerk Lynne Bruce. "We'll have enough (water), if we don't waste it," Bruce said. In addition to the restriction, the council is also asking that those who do lawn and garden watering to limit sprinkling to two hours each day watering is permitted.

The city will be again using the "odd-even" system this summer. Homes and addresses ending with odd numbers (1, 3, 5, 7, etc.) may water on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Home and addresses ending with even numbers (2, 4, 6, 8, etc.) may water on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturday. NO Sunday watering.

Trailblazers 4-H Club Competed in Wildlife Judging at Pocatello

Trailblazers 4-H Club members Ben Marek, Robert Magnuson, Josh Czowski, Brock Richle and Jennifer Colwell traveled to Pocatello on Saturday, June 3rd to participate in a statewide Wildlife Habitat Judging and Evaluation competition. They were joined by Moscow 4-H club members Nate Queener and Ben Graham. Of approximately 125 participants, these seven were the only ones from North Idaho.

Participants were divided into teams of four and were tested and graded on their knowledge and expertise regarding habitat for all types of wildlife, both game and non-game, in various settings including urban, suburban, and rural. They had studied for several months prior to the competition in preparation for the event, as well as raising funds to finance their trip.

Following the competition, scores were evaluated by Cooperative Extension and Idaho Department of Fish and Game officials and trophies and ribbons were awarded to teams and individuals. Nate Queener of Moscow won second place in individual scoring, while the team of Robert Magnuson, Ben Marek, Nate Queener, and Ben Graham placed second in the team competition for Juniors. There were both Junior and Senior Division teams.

Accompanying the contestants on the trip were Tom and Gayle Marek, Delores Czowski, Wade Richle, and Dana Magnuson of Kendrick, and Garry Queener and Hoey Graham of Moscow.

The group extends great and sincere thanks to Gayle Marek for her efforts in conceiving and organizing the study and fund-raising required to permit their participation, to Carolyn Brown and the other Trailblazers Club members for their encouragement and assistance, and especially to the members of the Kendrick-Juliaetta community for their support of fund-raising efforts.

Ted Meyer, 59, Claimed by Cancer

Theodore Herman Meyer, 59, a lifelong Leland, Idaho area farmer, died Wednesday, June 7, of brain cancer at Valley Rehabilitation and Living Center at Lewiston.

He was born at the Meyer family farm near Leland on May 3, 1936 to Herman and Thelma Schmidt Meyer. He lived all his life on the same farm.

He attended Leland School and graduated from Kendrick High School. He graduated from Pacific Lutheran University at Tacoma in 1959.

Ted enjoyed farming and rural life and even though brain surgery in 1965 left his right side impaired, he farmed and installed drainage tile lines for area farmers until he became ill. He was a 4-H leader for 25 years, and during that time taught welding, electricity and livestock.

With his marriage to Marlene Wilken Bowers in 1966 at Emmanuel Lutheran Church, in Cameron, Idaho, he gained two daughters, Susan and Cathi, as well. He took into his home and loved them as his own.

He was an active, lifelong member of the Cameron Emmanuel Lutheran Church where he taught Sunday School, led adult forums, and served on the church council and in other capacities.

In the community, Ted was active in Farm Bureau and was Nez Perce County president for six years, and was also a member of the Nez Perce County Planning and Zoning Commission for several years.

In June of last year, Ted underwent surgery and radiation treatments for brain cancer. He returned home in July where he lived until October when a second surgery was necessary. He was unable to return home afterwards and entered Valley Rehabilitation and Living Center in Lewiston, where he remained until his death.

Survivors include his wife, Marlene, and son Jack at the family home; two daughters, Susan Kelly of Wendell, N. C., and Cathi Cochran of Yuma, Arizona; four grandchildren, Jenna, Julia and Jessica Cochran of Yuma, and Cody Kelley of Wendell. He is further survived by his mother, Thelma Meyer, and his four sisters, Margie Silflow, Hermira Meyer and Loeda Reil, all of Kendrick, and Dorothy Schnable of Moscow. He also leaves his mother-in-law, Martha Wilken of Moscow. Lawrence Abitz, a cousin who was raised as a brother to Ted, also mourns his passing.

Marlene, Jack, Susan and Cathi suggest gifts to memorialize Ted may be given to: Cameron Emmanuel Church, Kendrick-Juliaetta Ambulance Fund, or the American Cancer Society.

Protect Your Ears from Loud Noise to Hold On to Your Hearing

—Your hearing is both sensitive and fragile.
—Noise that is loud enough and heard long enough will damage your hearing.
—Noise-induced hearing loss adds up over your lifetime.

Loud noise damages the hearing by overstimulating the delicate hair cells of the inner ear to cause what is commonly mislabeled "nerve deafness," explains Dr. George Gates, director of the Virginia Merrill Blo-edel Hearing Research Center at the University of Washington. While there are other causes of inner ear hearing loss, noise-induced hearing loss can be prevented by avoiding exposure to loud noises or by wearing earplugs or earmuffs when exposure is unavoidable.

As a general rule, said Gates, noise damages your hearing if you have to shout to be heard; if it causes pain in your ears or makes them ring; or if you have temporary hearing loss after exposure to loud noise.

Some people have the mistaken idea they've become used to loud noise. In fact, cautioned Gates, they have already damaged their hearing so they don't hear sound at the volume they once did.

Nor is youth a protection from hearing loss. "There is an alarming increase in hearing loss in youngsters," said Gates, "probably from loud music and frequent use of headphones."

At first, loud noise causes temporary hearing loss, but repeated exposure causes the loss to become permanent, as more inner-ear hair cells and their nerve endings are destroyed. Although recent research at the Virginia Merrill Blodel Hearing Research Center is studying ways to grow new hair cells, such a possibility is still years away, said Gates, who is also professor of otolaryngology-head and neck surgery in the UW School of Medicine. "There is currently no way to restore life to dead hair cells and nerve endings in humans," he said, "although it can be done in birds."

Sound is measured in decibels (dB). The scale runs from the faintest sound the human ear can detect, labeled 0 dB, to the scream of a jet engine or a shotgun blast at over 165 dB.

"It doesn't matter what the source of loud sound," he added. "If it is loud enough and you are exposed long enough, hearing loss will result."

Idaho Health Care Costs Continue Among Nation's Lowest

Idaho ranks 50th among all states in family out-of-pocket health care costs and 49th in the nation in average charges per hospital admission. Those statistics, compiled by the American Association of Retired Persons, the Health Care Investment Analysts, Inc., and the American Hospital Association, are proof the many efforts that have been made to contain Idaho health care costs are working, according to Dr. Joseph Callanan, M. D., a Boise allergist and President of the Idaho Medical Association.

The out-of-pocket health care expenses per family are a full 31% below the national average. As a percent of family income, costs are 16% below.

Yet another measure of the "good health" of Idaho's health care picture is a 1993 national survey which showed 89 hospital admissions per 1,000 residents of the Gem State, far below the national average. Idahoans length-of-stay and cost-per-stay are also among the lowest in the country.

"As these statistics show, Idahoans are benefiting from costs that are better than just about anywhere else in the nation," Dr. Callanan said. "There can be no question health care is a great value in Idaho."

Another area in which Idaho is progressing through innovative efforts is the ability to attract new physicians. Statistics in that area, too, are impressive, says IMA Executive Director Robert Seehusen.

"Idaho's ratio of physicians to residents is 160 to 100,000 population. Across the nation, it's 240 to 100,000," Seehusen said. "It must be remembered those numbers include all physicians, not just primary care practitioners."

"Whether those numbers indicate we have enough physicians is hard to say. But two major indicators are mortality (death) and morbidity (injury) rates which are well below the national average. That finding, coupled with the kind of conservative medicine practiced in Idaho, would seem to indicate no reduction in quality of care despite the lower number of physicians."

"Since there is no standard against which to measure, it may be Idaho has the correct number of physicians in most areas of the state," Seehusen said.

While Idaho appears to have an ample supply of specialists, Seehusen pointed out, work continues on many fronts to attract more primary care physicians, especially to rural areas. Idaho has successfully recruited highly qualified physicians from other states and has retained physicians trained in Idaho's residency programs at Boise and Pocatello. The family practice residency in Boise, for example, placed all nine Sunday Diane, Terry and Brian Clemm attended the annual Cedar Ridge picnic.

Saturday Diane Clemm marched with the VFW Auxiliary in the Helmer Day parade. Later in the day, Diane competed in the logging events.

Over the weekend the A. C. Wilson family enjoyed a visit with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson of Bellingham, Wash. and Mrs. Bert Russell of Tacoma.

Saturday Charley Bower attended Helmer Days.

A week ago Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Martin of Lewiston visited with Ruthie Wilson. Mr. and Mrs. Buford Fairfield of Lewiston were also callers that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Rimbrand and family of Deary were this Sunday visitors of Ruthie.

Mrs. Craig Warner and two friends from Deary visited last week with Ruthie.

The Sneve family spent the weekend camping and fishing at Freeman Creek.

Maxine and Harland Summer of Tualatin, Oregon took Ruth and Oscar Slind to the funeral of Ruth's graduating residents in Idaho in the past year, two thirds in rural areas.

Yet another factor in the improving picture, according to Seehusen, is increased availability of quality care in rural clinics and hospital being supported by new and expanded facilities from the urban areas. More care is being provided in-state and closer to home than only a few years ago. While some services must still be provided elsewhere, less costly, more highly specialized care is becoming increasingly available in Idaho with the additional training of our physicians and the purchase of state-of-the-art equipment by our hospitals.

"It's been a long road," Dr. Callanan said. "There have been many critics that have refused to look at real cost data, who have made inaccurate or out-of-context comparisons of Idaho's health care programs to espouse their own views."

"The fact is through the work of legislator, community support and many local physicians, development of efforts to attract health care professionals, and new technology, a lot of progress has been made. That is not to say some Idahoans covered by Medicaid and Medicare still aren't having trouble finding a doctor. Reimbursement rates continue to fall below costs of providing care and the additional paperwork continues to create additional financial disincentives," according to Callanan.

"Still, he said, "while no Idahoan is without care when sick or injured, much remains to be done to simplify these programs and create government reimbursement more closely tied to actual costs of care."

"It takes time to work political solutions," Callanan said. "It takes time to turn a medical student into a practicing physician. It takes time to form new access programs, form new delivery approaches, for consumers to develop more healthy lifestyles, and to educate those who use the health care delivery system to do so wisely and at the lowest possible costs. But working together, Idahoans have a history of getting the job done."
