Raging Potlatch Floods the Valley

The awesome power of the Potlatch River in flood stage is clearly evident in these pictures taken by local photographer Milt Patterson last Thursday and Friday. The first photo was taken on the bridge east of Kendrick leading up to the Southwick Grade, looking east up the Cedar Creek road. The barn was on land owned by the late Clarence Thornton. Soon after the building was swept away by the raging water.

The second picture, taken by Patterson from Highway 9, gives an excellent overview of Kendrick and the extent of the flooding.

In the photographs at the bottom of the page, Patterson was on the scene just as the waters swept away the former auto body and glass shop once operated by the late Doc Little. Volunteers are still in the shop in the first picture, the water batters and begins to weaken the building in the second photo, and then as the weakened structure was washed away. Doc's nearby trailer, although damaged survived the high water.

Also lost was the swinging bridge that once was the only access to the home across the river. The shop and bridge were about to go to the bottom, it finally collapsed and halfway between Kendrick and Juliaetta on Highway 3.

Sudden Warming Melts Snow and Ice

Kendrick and Juliaetta and the valley began cleaning up, drying out and mopping up Saturday morning after surviving as flood water rampaged through the area Thursday and Friday. Many other parts of North Idaho were inundated as rivers and creeks overflowed their banks flooding homes, businesses and farm lands, tore up rail tracks and ripped highways to disrupt travel. Damage estimates ran into the millions of dollars in north Idaho. The weather created a perfect setting for the disaster. First, there was heavy rain that saturated the ground in late January and early February. Second, the temperature dropped and turned the rain to snow that was over 12 inches in the low-lying areas and much higher in the hills and ridges. Third, the temperatures took a sudden, severe drop, slipping below zero and remaining there for almost a week. And finally the weather warmed, heading into the 40s and 50s, accompanied by more rain and the stage was set for disaster, and it began happening Wednesday, Feb. 7. Locally the Potlatch River began the rise Wednesday, fed by the melting snow and creeks leading into it from up in the Bovill area and area beyond. The thaw continued Wednesday night and the Potlatch raged even higher. During the evening the river left its banks and spread over the valley. The water continued its relentless rise all day Thursday and through the night, sweeping everything in its path, trees were uprooted, trailers and homes were swept downstream.

The dikes in Kendrick held, but the water found its way around them, fed by water coming down off the hills and from plugged storm drains and the rising ground water that found its way under the levees. Sandbagging efforts began Thursday night as water seeped into the

Kendrick main street, Zoe's Cafe's basement began filling with water and pumps began working Thursday afternoon and kept working until Sunday. The restaurant was forced to close until Monday. Fleming Truck and Equipment Co. on the south back street (Railroad St.) began being threatened by the water Thursday. Owner Wayne Harris sandbagged around part of the store, hoping to divert the water's flow, but when he came down to open for business early Friday morning, he found water in the building of more than 12-inches in depth. Soaked was merchandise and office paper and supplies. Water was flowing in a steady stream in the alley behind City Hall and the Magnuson, Brocke and Clemenhagen homes, down past the back of the Kendrick Garage, the Gazette office, the old hotel, Ellis Second Hand Store (the old WWP building), and the length of the street and alley. The homes on the south side of the street all were threatened by the flood, especially in the west end, especially the newer homes in the old ball park area, some of which were surrounded by water.

The flood water west of town (and east of town too), spread from the south hillside to the highway from up Cedar Creek down to Arrow Junction. In the afternoon the force of the water finally tore open the railroad tracks and washed over 400 feet of Highway 3 out near the old Albright turkey farm between Juliaetta and Arrow.

Along Highway 12 and 95 South, the road was washed and travel to and from Orofino was halted. Those motorists wishing to get to Orofino from Lewiston had to go up from Lewiston, over the Southwick Grade through Cameron and down to Ah-saka. Travel from Arrow to Juliaetta and Kendrick was halted about noon Friday and the traffic was closed until Monday afternoon and then on a 6 to 8 a. m. and 4 to 6 p. m. schedule only, which is still in effect as of Tuesday evening.

Those Great Volunteers

Kendrick and Juliaetta met this crisis with tremendous response from its citizens and city workers. "We're just very proud of the volunteers and city workers, Kendrick Mayor Jerry Brown said Monday morning. Volunteers were on the scene by Thursday when the extent of the threat was evident. We can't name them all, Brown said, referring to the volunteers, but we must especially acknowledge the help of Jerry Bruce, L&S Construction (who hauled the sand for the bags in), Brocke & Sons who provided the bags for the sand, Lillian Howerton for opening up the VFW hall for those needing temporary shelter from the water, and the Auxiliary of Baker-Lind Post 3913, Veterans of Foreign Wars for helping bring food in to and working with the public at the hall. Brown also had praise for the outstanding work of City Clerk Lynne Bruce and for maintenance man Steve Howerton, both of whom put in many extra hours and hard work during the crisis. Brown said he wanted a special note of appreciation to the high school students who helped fill and place the sandbags.

By Tuesday evening the water in Kendrick and Juliaetta has subsided, the skies are clear, most of the pumps have been shut down and life has returned to its slow, normal routine. Much clean-up work remains but the two towns have another bright star in its histories. The spirit and determination shown by its citizens who responded so well in the face of adversity is a golden memory. A heartfelt "Thank You" and a sincere "Well Done" is deserved by all!

Areas Attempting to Access Damages Of Flood

In the wake of devastating floods of last week, local officials joined federal, state and regional leaders in an attempt to access damages and find a solution to some of the problems caused by high water. Kendrick mayor Jerry Brown was in Moscow Monday afternoon to meet with Gov. Phil Batt and Sens. Larry Craig and Dirk Kempthorne and Latah County officials. Brown said Latah County officials estimated the cost of repairs to county roads will be near $2 million. City mayors in the county estimated their communities sustained damages surpassing another $1 million.

It remained unclear Monday as to how much and how federal and state money will be available to county, city and individual victims of the floods, Mayor Brown said after returning from the meeting. He said their was talk of grants being made on a 75-25 matching fund basis. That is the state or federal agencies contributing 75 percent and the communities 25 percent. Low interest rate loans to individuals and cities was also available.

Mark E. Tijerina, a spokesman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), said central offices will be opened in Lewiston and Coeur d'Alene, with a number of smaller assistance offices in other towns. He urged all flood victims to call FEMA at 1-800-462-9029 to get their name and an estimate of damages registered with the agency. Brown said he had heard there may be an office opened at the fire hall in Kendrick, but had no details as to when or if this might happen.

Low-interest loans are expected to be available. But officials warned no bucket of money is available to bail everyone out. In many or most cases, private parties will have to rely on insurance if they have it. The city of Kendrick would also like to have reports from individuals and businesses so an inventory of damage sustained can be made. Any resident or business house is asked to call city hall at 289-5157 if they have any damage from the flood.

Inability to pay decides for many of us perplexing questions that worry the well-to-do.

Flood Pointed to Need for a Plan

By Lillian Howerton

The flood of February 1996 will be one of those landmarks of time, embedded in our minds for generations to come.

We have learned a lot about ourselves, the weight of priorities, the loving care of our neighbors, and most of all now much control mortals don't have when Mother Nature activates her plan.

Disaster just happens in its own time and it is very hard to convince us it will really mature to a high level of devastation.

Therefore, to beat disaster at its own game is to be prepared with a plan that helps everyone, young, old, and in between.

The confidence of knowing where the shelters will be, food and water will be available, how transportation will be provided, etc., alleviates confusion for our citizens both within city limits and the surrounding community.

Thank you to everyone who helped at the shelter in the VFW Hall, those of you from the Manor for the

Bulky Waste Site in Juliaetta will be Open Until February 26

Dan Bafus, Latah County's solid waste coordinator announced Monday morning that the bulky waste collection facility in Juliaetta will be open from Feb. 12 through 26 24-hours a day to assist area residents in clean up efforts. The facility is located down by the Lewiston Grain Grower elevators. The site will be unmanned most of the time, but Latah Sanitation will be collecting and emptying the dumpsters on a regular basis.

food supply, sandbaggers, sheriff for having the officer on hand, and all the many acts of caring and giving. You all know who you are and who they were—it is too easy to leave someone out when you start naming names.

As a community let us pool together with an updated disaster plan this year of 1996 and beat disaster on its own time! (Not that we did such a bad job, matter of fact we did quite well. Just makes it less stressful).

Boil Water Order Lifted

The "boil water" order imposed by the City of Kendrick Friday evening has been lifted, reported Mayor Jerry Brown Tuesday morning. The order had been imposed when the flood water covered the city's number 1 well near the old ball park.

Tests by the state health department showed the water to be safe to drink.

Erna Nelson Honored
On 80th Birthday Feb. 4

By Rosalie Blankenship

Erna Nelson was pleasantly surprised Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 6, when neighbors and relatives gathered at her home in honor of her 80th birthday. Visiting and refreshments were served by Gertrude Sneve, Marlene Millard, Doris M Silflow, Gladys Whittinger, and Rosalie Blankenship.

Then in the evening it was "Cousin Night" at Zoe's Cafe, when all the Silflow cousins of Erna, who live in this area, met to have dinner, with Erna as the guest of Honor. She was presented with a dozen red roses from the group.

Because of distance, weather and road conditions, and work schedules, Erna's brother Robert, and her sons Richard and Roger, and four other Silflow cousins were unable to attend, but phone calls came and flowers arrived at her house. Harold Silflow as master of ceremonies entertained the group as incidents of long ago were remembered. Erna is the eldest of the 17 grandchildren of Ferdinand and Ida Lohman Silflow. The "cousins" have always been close.

Erna Ida Wegner was born Feb. 6, 1916 to August O. and Elsie (Silflow) Wegner at the family farm near Cameron. She grew up with two younger brothers, Harry and Robert, and went through the 8th grade at the one-room school at Cameron. She graduated from high school at Kendrick in 1934.

Erna well-remembers the days of the kerosene and gas lamps, wood-burning stoves and out-houses, and walking the mile and a half through deep snow to school. Also the many farm activities of picking and canning fruits and vegetables, milking cows, tending chickens and geese, and butchering hogs and beef in the winter. Big batches of bread were baked several times a week. (All the baking and canning was done on a wood-burning stove. If it was 90° outside, it was well over 100 in the kitchen.) The butchered pork was made into smoked sausage, hams and bacon, and most of the beef was canned to preserve it.

In the summer the entire family would spend weeks hoeing weeds in the bean fields which were planted in rows. Erna remembers helping cook for the 20-man harvest crew who required 3 meals a day—plus a forenoon and an afternoon lunch.

After graduating from high school, Erna worked for 3 years at the telephone office in Kendrick (then owned by Herman and Otto Schufer).

In 1937 the family farm at Cameron was sold, and they moved to a newly-purchased farm near Pullman, Washington.

Erna and Edwin R. Nelson were married on Sept. 24, 1940. They purchased their home from Elsie Emmett (where Erna still lives). Edwin owned his own truck and did custom hauling. In later years he worked for Brocke and sons. He passed away Feb. 12, 1994. They had been married for more than 53 years.

Their son Richard and wife Darlene live in Kennewick, Wash. Their son Roger and wife Carolyn live in Moses Lake, Wash. Erna's brother, Harry Wegner, died in 1979. Her brother Robert and wife Betty live at Bellevue, Wash. Erna has six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Erna's many flowers, roses, walnut trees and vegetable garden keep her very busy and happy.

She is very active as a volunteer at the Kendrick Senior Center. She is also a member of the Kendrick Canyon Klub and is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, Lewiston, (where she and Edwin and their sons were actively involved).

Those attending the dinner in Erna's honor were: Marvin and Margie Silflow, Emil and Doris Silflow, Harold and Dorothy Silflow, John

Volunteers Kept Senior Center High and Only Slightly Damp

By Frank Jacobson

They came from everywhere and from nowhere. Men, women, and kids, with strong arms and backs. And determination, the will to keep the flood waters out of Kendrick's senior center last Friday morning. And they prevailed!

Golden Sunset Senior Citizens salutes them all with a big THANKS and God bless. Without them and their labor, their tools, their rigs, and their know-how, the slight damage suffered could have turned into a disaster.

The seniors also want to thank Mayor Brown, Steve Howerton, and Lynne Bruce for bringing together the folks, supplies, and equipment needed to divert the flood waters. They're first rate! Thanks also to those merchants who, despite their own problems, reached out to help us—Abrams Hardware, Fleming—and Golden Steele for the use of a shop vac.

And a big thank you to Harry Burmeister for manning a broom, mop, and vacuum to help get the water up off the floor. And even as the rear wall of his building (and home!) was collapsing. Thanks too to Jerry Bruce for his professional know-how and strong presence on the scene!

Chalk it all up to community spirit. That's what it takes. The same kind of spirit you surely will find at the seniors' annual pancake breakfast scheduled for Sunday, February 25, from 7:00 a. m. to 2 p. m. $4 for adults, $2.50 for kids, all you can eat hotcakes, ham, hash browns, scrambled eggs, juice, and coffee. A good place to eat and exchange tall tales and outright lies concerning the events of the past few days! And to say it again, "Thanks all of you for the help you for the help you give so generously to our seniors."

Cameron Ladies' Program—

The ladies of the Cameron Emmanuel Lutheran Church will provide the program for Golden Sunset Seniors and others, members or not, Thursday, Feb. 15, at the center.

This is an annual affair the seniors look forward to.

Please note this is on a Thursday, delayed because of high water!

and Rosalie Blankenship, Kenneth and Marjorie Wilken, Roy and Doris Silflow, Ted and Elsie Freeman, Jim and Gladys Whittinger, Don and Marlene Millard, and the guest of honor.

Daisy Stage Brown, Cavendish Native, Passes Feb. 5

Daisy M. Stage-Brown, 94, a long-time Cavendish area homemaker, died of causes related to age Monday, Feb. 5, at Clearwater Valley Hospital at Orofino.

She was born May 7, 1901, to George W. and Laura E. Marlatt Crabb at Cavendish, where she attended school.

She married Fred Stage October 11, 1916, at Spokane.

During World War II she worked in the shipyards at Portland, Ore. The couple later farmed in the Cavendish area until his death Nov. 6, 1961.
