Minnick Timber Plan Would Brin Certainty To Timber Country

By Walt Minnick U. S. Senate candidate

I've spent my entire adult life turning trees into jobs.

From my experience at TJ, I be- porated into each National Forest's lity over timber policy in Idaho.

and timber dependent communities need certainty. No business can plan for the future one year at a time and you can't expect industry to make plant modernization decisions on that basis. Mill towns can't plan either. However, with individual timber sales being appealed each year, that is exactly what they are forced to do.

The centerpiece of my plan is a shift to ten year forest planning pany, we created housands of good where all timber sales and other land use decisions would be incor-
