Cedar Ridge 4-H Club Backpacking Group Treks to Weitas Creek

Members of the Cedar Ridge 4-H Club Backpacking Project: Christina and Michael Eberhardt, Trevor Groseclose, Stefani and Richie Hitchcock, Dani, Jamie and Nicole Scott, Amber and Matt Tefft, and their parents enjoyed a three-day backpacking trip to Weitas Creek on July 11 to 13.

Planning the trip began with Dean Weyen coming to our meeting and showing us what you should bring with you on your backpacking trip. Then we began our preparations on where we were going to go and what we were going to eat. After several meetings we decided on going to Weitas Creek.

The trip began Friday morning when we left from our leader, Tami Hitchcock's home for a three-hour drive to the Weitas Creek campgrounds. We then backpacked up Weitas Creek to our base camp site. We enjoyed fishing in the clear waters of Weitas Creek and we also went on a 12-mile round trip hike to the ranger station. It was lots of fun! We ended our trip on Sunday with a two and a half mile hike back to the trucks.

During our backpacking trip the following demonstrations were given: Michael, "How and Where to Set Up Your Tent"; Christina and Dani, "How to Build a Keyhole Fire and Tend it Properly"; Jami "Making Your Own Wash Station"; and Trevor, "Proper Methods for Extinguishing Your Fire."

Eighth Birthday Celebrations July 26

The families of Ada Westendahl and Quentin Carlson wish to invite friends and neighbors to celebrate their 80th birthdays with cake, beverages, and visiting Saturday, July 26, at 4 o'clock.

Ada was born May 20, 1917 and raised in the Kendrick area most of her life. Many people know her from her years as the bookkeeper at the Lewiston Grain Growers Warehouse in Kendrick.

Quentin was born July 29, 1917 and raised on the family farm near Troy. In addition to farming the family ranch, he worked as an electrician for Washington State University, where he retired.

Both now live in the Kendrick area.

Please, no gifts. Ada and Quentin say that your years of friendship and the opportunity to visit with you Saturday is gift enough.

Cameron, Southwick News

Bob and Judy White camped at the Southfork campground for a few days of fishing for salmon—no luck. Over the 4th they camped at Red River Hot Springs with Judy's parents Wally and Lucille Steiner of Caldwell. Her brother Jack and Judy Steiner and other family members were also present.

Don Fry and Jean Wegner spent the weekend at McCall with Dr. Glen Wegner of Boston, who was there on business with some of his friends. While there they also visited with Doug and Nora Wegner.

Monday, Bill and Mary Wills traveled to Othello where they picked up grandson Andy Schwartz of Puyallup. Their daughter Margie Schwartz met them halfway. Andy will visit with his grandparents and uncle Ken for a week.

On the 13th Bill and Mary attended Roberta Bingham's 80th birthday party.

Jim and Bonnie Silflow's children, Josh, Ryan and Summer are spending the month of July with their grandparents in Arkansas.

Visitors from Friday night through Tuesday morning at the home of Ron and Sonja Lohman were Dan and Lucille Cunningham and Edward Krueger of Salem, Ore., and Stella Cunningham and children P. J. and Sierra of Phoenix, Ariz.

Gina Frazier and children Stephan, Heather and Danielle of Koozka were Sunday overnight guests of Connie Lohman and visited at the Ron Lohman home Monday evening before leaving for their home. Jesse and Ginger Matthes and children Samantha, Jessa and Wyatt of Weippe were Sunday afternoon visitors.

Monday afternoon callers were Duwayne Ward and Bob and Judy White.

Last Wednesday Ron and Sonja Lohman were guests of Mel and Betty Wilks of Genesee.

Priscilla Armitage returned home Monday evening from a 10 day trip to Mexico assisting a mission team in Marelia, Mexico. Priscilla joined her niece Judy Clark of Moses Lake and a granddaughter Amber Ford of Battleground, Wash., for the trip. Judy is the daughter of John Cuddy and the mother of Ted Clark, the missionary at Marelia. Priscilla, Amber and Judy helped cook for 80 young people at the camp which is part of the Christ Mission Many Lands work. Here were work teams from across the United States that were helping with the construction of Hacienda Brea Camp. It was a very educational experience with much hard work and few conveniences, but rich blessings and memories. Priscilla arrived home tired but thankful for her journey.

Tuesday morning Rollin Armitage and Doug Armitage were visitors with Arlie and Priscilla.

Marine Cpl. John Wegner Visited Eritrea, Africa

Marine Cpl. John P. Wegner, son of Vern and Ruth A. Wegner of Kendrick, recently visited the north east African nation of Eritrea, while assigned to the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit, currently on a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean with the USS Boxer Amphibious Ready Group.

While in Africa, Wegner and his fellow Marines provided the Eritrean military with a unique opportunity to conduct military training that is not currently available in their own military. Marines from the 15th MEU demonstrated helicopter assault techniques during the two-day exercise, showing the Eritrean soldiers how to safely board, debark and secure a landing zone from a helicopter.

Following the two days of training, Wegner and other members of the 15th MEU helped citizens to construct and landscape a public library. In addition, the Marines donated more than 1,000 English language text books for use in the library and also donated health care products and sports equipment to the community.

The 1994 graduate of Kendrick High School joined the Marine Corps in July of 1994.

THANKS FROM PAULA A—

Thank you to Deb and family and friends for the best birthday I've ever had.

BLM Issues Fire Safety Guidelines, Enlists Public Support

Bureau of Land Management Acting Director Sylvia Baca this week called on the public to take more steps to help protect property and personal safety as the 1997 wildland fire season gets underway.

"While the 1997 fire season has not been as active as last year's, there's still a long summer ahead," Baca said. "We need the public's support to ensure the safety of their home, their lives, and the lives of our firefighters." Baca said that while Federal firefighting resources "are not as strained as they were a year ago," there are significant fires in certain areas in Alaska and Southern California. "We are not letting down our guard for this year's fire season, and I ask the public to do its part in helping us prevent fires on the public lands."

Les Rosenkrance, Director of the National Interagency Fire Center in Boise, joined Baca in urging the public to take fire-safety precautions. "Despite the intensity of last year's fire season, which burned more than six million acres of public land and destroyed nearly 800 structures, no Federal firefighters lost their lives on the fireline while battling the blazes. The public can help us maintain that safety record this season."

To reduce fire hazards, Baca said homeowners should:

- * Clear leaves, brush, and dry grass within 30 feet of houses and other structures. This will reduce the chance of a wildfire reaching the house and provide a safety zone or "defensible space" for firefighters to work in. Homeowners should keep the area cleared throughout the fire season.
- * Remove all trees within 10 feet of the house and space remaining trees at least 10 feet apart. Homeowners should also cut all branches to a height of six feet to prevent ground fire from spreading into tree tops.
- * Clean the roof and rain gutters regularly, keeping them free of twigs, leaves and pine needles.
- * Remove tree limbs within 10 ft. of the chimney or stove pipe.
- * Store firewood and other combustible materials, like picnic tables, at least 30 feet away from the house and other buildings.
- * Post their house address along the road at the driveway entrance, as well as on the home. Numbers should be at least four inches high and mounted on high-contrast, non-combustible background material.
- * Apply a fire-retardant solution, such as phosphate salt, to wood shingle and shake roofs. Homeowners should re-treat the roof as directed.

For those who are working or recreating outdoors, Baca urged such individuals to follow these safety guidelines:

- * Check area fire conditions before going to wildlands and strictly observe any restrictions on campfires, smoking, or equipment that may be in effect. Call or visit the nearest Federal or state land-management agency to find out if the fire danger is low, moderate, high or extreme.
- * Don't park cars, trucks, or recreational vehicles on dry vegetation. (The exhaust system on a vehicle can reach a temperature of more than 1,000 degrees—and it only takes about 500 degrees to start a summer wildfire.)
- * Use an approved spark arrester on all internal combustion-powered vehicles and equipment. This screen, which fits between the exhaust ports of the piston and muffler, helps ensure that sparks generated by vehicles and equipment don't start wildfires. Check and replace spark arresters periodically to ensure proper functioning.
- * Maintain equipment properly.
- * Clear the area around a campfire. Remove all vegetation and debris from within 10 feet before you start the fire.
- * Keep fire-suppression tools handy. Make sure that you have a bucket of water, shovel, and other implements nearby in case your campfire starts to get out of control.
- * Make sure a campfire is "dead-out" before leaving. Stir water and dirt into the coals with a shovel or stick until the coals are cool enough to touch with your hands.
- * Extinguish smoking materials properly. Put out cigarette, cigars, or pipes only in cleared areas free of vegetation or debris.
- * Don't use fireworks in wildland areas. (Fireworks are illegal on most wildlands.)

Final Summer Reading Program at Library

The final special program for summer reading will be a Medieval Festival to be held at the Juliaetta Library at 10:30 on Thursday, July 24th. There will be crafts and food plus jousting contests. All area children are welcome to join the fun. This will be the last Thursday program for this summer but all the children who have signed up for the reading program may continue to read and write down the books read to receive their prizes. The last date to complete the program will be Saturday, August 16.

On July 17 a crowd of 40 children and adults enjoyed looking at and learning about sea shells from David Jones and Bryan. The Jones have a really extensive and beautiful collection and everyone at the library was impressed by the portion they brought in for viewing. We all learned new things about shells from Dave, and the staff wants to convey its thanks to him and to Bryan for sharing their hobby with us.

The children who completed the summer reading program for this week are as follows: Megan Warner, Ben Warner, Blake Warner, Conner Hammond, Britanni Nagle, Chase Gillispie, Tess Gillispie, Sarah Vakoeh, Devon Hites, Cody Joe Stockard, and Casey Stockard. They all received a prize book of their choice and a water bottle provided by the Washington Water Power Company.

For more information phone 276-7071 or come in during open hours: Monday 3-6, Wednesday 3-8, Thursday 10-6 and Saturday 10-12.

Dorendorf Family Gathering a Great Success

The Dorendorf family gathered together Sunday, July 20 at both the Senior Center and the Kendrick Park for their annual picnic. Eighty-eight were in attendance. Those present came from Salem and Grants Pass, Oregon; Seattle, Spokane, Nine Mile Falls, Tacoma, Clarkston and Edmonds, Washington; Billings, Montana; Phoenix, Arizona; Raleigh, North Carolina; and Kellogg, Coeur d'Alene, Post Falls, Moscow, Potlatch, Deary, Lewiston, Kendrick and Southwick, Idaho.

Books containing genealogy of the Dorendorf family written by Cindy Young of California and published by Bob and Shirley Dorendorf of Lewiston were sold and pictures of Frieda Rhinehardt Frizzell as a young child, age 5 or 6 years, were given to family members.

Music, provided by Linda Kimbley Moss of Lewiston and Joe Syverson of Clarkston was enjoyed by the group, and others enjoyed a walk in the park or a dip in the pool. It's always great to meet family members visiting for the first time and it is a fine time to reflect on the memories of those who are no longer with us.

Stony Point News—

Saturday, July 19, Wayne and Wanda Hoskins attended a lovely 50th wedding anniversary at the Cottonwood Creek Community Church honoring Douglas and Doris Field who were first pastors to serve the church. They had a great time and it was wonderful seeing so many old friends at such a happy occasion.

Sunday the 20th was a never-to-be-forgotten day at the Cottonwood Creek Community Church as it observed 50 years of serving the area. Most of the former pastors were present for the day and re-dedication service. Pastor Jack and Pat Hiller who were the second to serve the church were Saturday overnight guests with Wanda and Wayne. It was a wonderful day and to see so many folks who were attendees during the 50s. The occasion was a highlight of our lives.

Heimgartner's Fiftieth Anniversary Reception Sunday, July 27

Floyd and Elizabeth Heimgartner of Juliaetta will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception to be held from 2 to 4 o'clock Sunday, July 27, at the VFW Hall in Kendrick. They were married June 15, 1947 at Lewiston.

The couple's four children, Carol Bartelson of Whidbey Island, Wash.; Capt. Kenneth Heimgartner, USN, of Italy; Mark Heimgartner of Juliaetta and Joyce Leffer of Vancouver, Wash., will host the event.

5-Day Bible Club Aug. 4-8 At Juliaetta Comm. Church

The Juliaetta Community Church will be hosting a 5-Day Bible Club for kids Aug. 4 to 8 at the church from 2:30 to 3:30 p. m. Stories, games, singing, and refreshments are all part of the fun for children in the first through 6th grade.

If you have any questions call: Denese Fischer 276-4510.

Editor:

There is little to dispute the fact that environmentalism is the liberal's mantra; in fact, some say the weird science of environmentalism is the leftist's prayer in school. Consider the old saying that those who ignore history are doomed to repeat it. The movement to turn our public land back to a primitive condition by these people is paralleled in Roman history.

During the reign of Roman Emperor Commodus (180 to 192 A. D.) the African lion was re-introduced to the countryside surrounding Rome to please the emperor, who fancied himself a huntsman. "The royal beast was reserved for the pleasures of the Emperor and the capitol, and the unfortunate peasant who killed one of them, though in his own defense, incurred a very heavy penalty" (taken from Gibbon's "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," published first in 1776.) This was the first game law in human history, and it compares to our endangered species law that is empowering these greenies to re-introduce timber wolves and grizzly bears in our national forests.

We all know these liberals for what they are: social busy-bodies who profess to know more than we do and are therefore smarter, people who view themselves as being on the moral high ground because of this self view of superior intellect, and, as such, intellectual elitists. In this case the emperor does wear clothes, and they are green.

The condescension that the leftists in this country treat us with is no different than the regard that the Roman elite held toward the peasant in their day. Three hundred seventy years later, though Rome was in an even further stage of decline, they showed the good sense to repeal this odious game law.

Lions had been present before Roman Civilization, and it took a tyrant to re-introduce them. It is lost to history how much livestock and how many peasants the lions killed during that 370 year period, but re-introduction in that case, though for different reasons, is no different than grizzly and wolf re-introduction in this case.

These people don't give a damn whose livestock is eaten or who gets killed by turning these predators loose. This from the very people who cry for more restrictions on our freedoms in the name of "public safety." It is impossible for them not to know that citizens are going to be killed by these actions, because it is already happening.

Confronted with the injustice and (ir)responsibility of turning predators loose that are mauling people, killing (and sometimes eating) adults and children, environmentalists always say, in variation, something like, "Well, they (mountain lions, wolves, grizzlies) were here first. It's because we encroached on their habitat." And say no more. Without spelling it out, they have essentially said that it is acceptable to them that people get killed as long as their environmental correctness goes forward. And there lies the truth in this matter. Quite candidly, we have been told by these people that their ultimate goal is to remove the right of citizens to enter the forest. The grizzly and wolf is no less a tool to get what they want than the Spotted Owl was.

It is no longer necessary to look for enemies foreign, for we have enemies domestic in our midsts who clutch to their bosoms as a life vest to a drowning man a law so bad that it mandates the endangerment of human life. Such is the Endangered Species Act. The lives of double standard these people lead, the hypocrisy they practice and the callousness that they show toward their fellow citizen is mind boggling.

To repeat, these emperors wear green, have an extremely high opinion of themselves, and to them any citizen who isn't just like them is viewed as having no more rights than the poor, unfortunate peasants of the Roman Empire.

Kruckeberg, a UW professor emeritus of botany.

For most of us, a brush with poison ivy, oak or sumac will result in a red, itchy rash that usually will go away after two uncomfortable weeks. A small percentage of others who are extremely susceptible, however, may require emergency medical treatment after coming into contact with the plants.

If you've never developed the rash from poison ivy, oak or sumac, you may be in luck for another year. In order for a person to develop the rash, a form of contact dermatitis, he or she must first be sensitized to the toxic agents by a previous exposure. A reaction does not usually occur with first exposure.

Stinging nettles, on the other hand, leave little up to chance. "Almost everyone will be immediately sensitized and adversely affected if they run up against the stinging nettle," Kruckeberg said.

The stinging nettle, which is found mostly in wet, shady places, is the most common toxic plant on the west side of the Cascades. The plant causes an intense burning and itching sensation that lasts for at least a few minutes. "Some people can have it for half a day," Kruckeberg said.

While the saying "leaves of three, let them be," is not a bad general rule to follow, it may not be enough to make a clear identification of these plants. Here are a few descriptions that should come in handy for avoiding these weeds while on the trail.

- Poison ivy grows as a low shrub or vine; it has yellow-green flowers, three leaflets ranging from three to 15 centimeters long, and small white berries that appear in the fall.
- Poison oak's leaflets are blunt at the tip, and can be glossy or dull; the leaflets grow in clusters of three and are from one to three inches long; its center leaf resembles an oak leaf, and its berries are white and hang in clusters.
- Poison sumac appears in eastern Washington and Oregon as a low ground shrub; its leaflets, which are large, pointed and oval, also grow in clusters of three.
- The stinging nettle's leaves are large and paired opposite each other on square rather than round stems; its leaves are coarsely toothed on the edges and heart-shaped at the base; its flowers are small and purple; it can grow from three to eight feet tall.

"The best way to avoid them is by recognizing them," says Arthur

Each "hair" on the edge of the edge of the stinging nettle's leaves is like a small medical ampule containing a toxin produced by the plant, Kruckeberg said. When an unsuspecting person brushes the leaf, the tips of the nettles breaks off and the toxin is spread on the skin.

If you think you have come in contact with any of these plants, the best course of action is to wash all of your exposed areas with cold water as soon as possible. If done within five minutes, the water may neutralize their poison. Clothes should be washed as soon as possible, as the toxin can remain on them for longer than a week.

If you develop a rash, try to avoid scratching, as your fingernails may carry germs that can cause infections. Cool showers, calamine lotion, or witch hazel reportedly help relieve symptoms of the rash, but in severe cases involving swelling around the face, people should see a doctor. Steroids may be prescribed to reduce the swelling.

Avoid the Rash; Recognize Nature's Poisonous Plants

Whether they are nature's way of getting back at us for trampling through the woods, or there simply to be admired along with the rest of the flora as we enjoy a hike, poison ivy, poison oak, poison sumac and stinging nettles definitely have a way of making their presence known; these poisonous plants will affect millions of people this summer.

Local News Of Juliaetta

Jeanne Wadford and Juanita Craig attended a three-day Freshman family reunion in Walla Walla last week. Then they traveled to Cement, Wash. where they were guests of Marcella and Wes Pike and also visited with Bruce and Janet Todhunter and Michelle Clark.

Thursday Jac and Davida Borden of Otis, Ore., arrived to visit with Lura Butler and family in the area. Friday they all visited Karen and Gary Eggers in Bovill. Saturday they drove to Orofino to spend time with Jessie Erlwine. Jac and Davida spent Saturday night with her aunt, Helen Bartlett, in Lewiston and left for home Sunday morning.

Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lays of Lapwai visited Viola Johns. Later in the day Sally and Earl Arndt were callers. Sunday Jim Nelson of Austin, Texas visited Viola. Jim is a former member of the Kendrick community growing up on American Ridge and graduating from Kendrick High School.

once considered a threat only to travelers in exotic locations, are now found in the neighborhood grocery, warns a Stanford Medical Center infectious diseases specialist. These "bugs," which typically lurk in Third World ponds, streams and other contaminated water sources, can be found on fruits and vegetables increasingly being brought to this country, says Dr. Lucy Tompkins, professor of medicine (infectious diseases) and director of Stanford Health Services' clinical microbiology lab.

The organisms range from almost-visible protozoa to microscopic bacteria and even tinier viruses. Their effects vary, but typically include acute or persistent diarrhea. The bacteria go by such names as E. coli or Salmonella. Some organisms, such as the hepatitis-A virus, attack the liver, and others attack the nervous system.

Tompkins doesn't suggest that most people give up eating fresh fruit, but she does offer a few thoughts about what to watch for: * Keep up with the news. Often, outbreaks are widely reported. "If the news says an outbreak of diarrhea has been traced to, say, raspberries from Latin America, it would seem to be a good idea to give up raspberries from that part of the world for a while," she says.

Friday Cindy McNaughton of Pendleton brought Kylie up to spend two weeks visiting with the Buddy Henson family. Sunday Kathy Groseclose drove Desmond and Kari Groseclose, Bryce Henson and Kylie McNaughton to Cheney to watch the Seattle Seahawks practice. They were thrilled to get autographs of some of the Seahawk star players.

Curb-Side Recycling in Kendrick each Thursday morning

In cooperation with the City of Kendrick, Dave Dean of Davey's Recycling, will be in Kendrick each Thursday morning to pick up recyclible items if placed at the curbside.

Here is what is being accepted at this time:

- Newsprint
- Magazines
- Cardboard (corrugated & uncorrugated)
- Clear Glass
- Tin Cans
- Aluminum Can
- Plastics No. 1, No. 2 & Milk Jugs

THE FOLLOWING IS SUGGESTED:

- Please don't use plastic bags for recyclibles.
- Please have items out by 7:30 a. m. Thursdays
- It would help if you would rinse all cans and make sure they are empty. You do not have to take the labels off.
- Cardboard must be flattened. It would be very space saving if everything else was also flattened.

Public Announcement Of Magistrate Judge Applicants

The Second Judicial District Magistrate Commission will meet in late August to select an attorney to replace The Honorable William A. Stellmon in Nez Perce County. Judge Stellmon, who will retire at the end of August, has served as a magistrate since September 1990. Thirteen applicants are being considered.

From the Lewiston area are Derrick A. Ater, Gregory K. Kalbfleisch, Eric K. Peterson, Don L. Roberts, Jamie C. Shropshire, and Daniel L. Spickler.

From outside of Lewiston are Stephanie A. Altig (Boise), Allen H. Browning (Idaho Falls, Richard Christensen (St. Maries), Erika B. Ellingsen (Hayden), Lansing L. Haynes (Hayden Lake), Janice L. Kroeger (Boise), and Orin L. Squire (Orofino).

Evaluation questionnaires on the applicants will be sent to attorneys statewide. Questionnaires for public comment may be obtained from the Clerks of the District Court, whose addresses are:

Nez Perce County Courthouse, Lewiston, ID 83501 (799-3164);

Clearwater County Courthouse, Orofino, ID 83544 (476-5596);

Idaho County Courthouse, Grangeville, ID 83530 (983-2776);

Latah County Courthouse, Moscow, ID 83843 (883-2255);

Lewis County Courthouse, Nezperce, ID 83543 (937-2251).

In order for them to be considered by the Commission, evaluations should be returned to the trial court

Ancient Skills Gathering Slated Near Grangeville Next Week

More than 40 of the West's top wilderness instructors will teach at a week-long gathering near Grangeville, July 27 to Aug. 2. The focus of gathering is self-sufficient, natural living using old-time wilderness skills. Participants will learn techniques to simplify their lifestyle and reduce their dependence upon society. Cost of the event is $155 per adult (ages 12-16 $100, ages 7-11 $75, younger children are free. Primitive camping is provided on site at no extra cost. Food is not provided. Participants are encouraged to cook in groups, pot-luck style at the large primitive kitchen in main camp.

Scheduled classes include native plant medicines and how to make them, edible plant harvesting and processing, natural hide tanning, plant fiber cordage making, Paiute deadfall traps, bow and arrow making, temporary and permanent shelter construction, non-loom weaving, administrator's office no later than August 4.

blanket coat (capote) making (bring a wool blanket), felt clothes making, bow drill fire making and other primitive fire making techniques, willow basketry, flint knapping, hot rock and steam pit cooking, porcupine quill work, moccasin making, split willow deer toys, cattail dolls and visors, pottery making, and much more! The evenings will be full of story telling, drumming, music and dancing! There will be more classes offered than participants will have time to take, so they will have to choose. Some classes have a materials fee, normally $5 to $10, but many classes are free. This is a one-of-a-kind event. Many of the skills are "lost skills," known to less than 500 people in all of North America. The instructors are experts, regarded by their peers as among the best in their fields of instruction. Many of the instructors run their own primitive skills school.

The primitive living skills gathering will take place on 300 acres of mountain forest and meadow 7 miles south of Grangeville, Idaho, ¼ of a mile past Snowhaven ski area on the left. To register and receive more information write to: Earth Circle, P. O. Box 742, Grangeville, ID 83530 or call 983-3406. Or, just show up by Monday morning, July 27, with your camping gear and a willingness to learn!

A properly beaten egg white will more than triple its volume.
