Public Pay Phone Urged for Juliaetta

Among the topics of discussion at Thursday meeting of the K-J Community Development Assoc. was installation of a public pay phone for the City of Juliaetta. Zana Sherman, owner of Juliaetta's First Bank of Pizza, said that when her pizza parlor is not open, there is no access to a public phone or to any other phone. (Zana's shop is not a public phone, but she often gets requests to use the phone, especially in the evening. Dan Schuelke, manager of TDS TeleCom, local office and Candy Hoisington, were both at the Thursday meeting and were very agreeable to such an installation. "No problem," Schuelke said, "all we need is a location." That will probably have to be provided by the City of Juliaetta and no problems are anticipated there.

Ray Snyder, owner of Snyder's Home Center was also present to discuss the creation of one-way traffic in the alley of 8th Street in Kendrick (see separate story.) The members of the association were also agreeable with this proposal.

In other matters, secretary Nora Abbott reminded members that dues are due. President Dana Magnuson urged that a special effort be made to enroll new members in association.

Phyllis Berg, chairman of the Business Retention and Expansion committee reported on the recent quilt show, held in conjunction with the weekly Community Market in the park. Sixty-six visitors signed the guest book during that show. However, not everyone attending signed the book and the attendance was much greater than indicated. There were 34 separate entries in the show with some entrants providing several items. There were 8 individual winners for the 16 judging categories and the two customer-voted categories. All winners received a certificate and a prize donated by an area business.

President Magnuson and those at the meeting had high praise for Mrs. Berg's work, not only on this event, but for her fine work all summer with the Community Market. Phyllis is a tireless worker.

Former Tigers to Play On the Palouse

Former Kendrick Tiger football standouts will soon be taking to the gridiron of the Palouse in a homecoming of sorts. Chad Helmgartner (1994) is playing defensive end for the Boise State Broncos, and Craig Tefft (1995) is playing quarterback and punting for Walla Walla Community College.

Craig is listed as the second string quarterback and the starting punter for WWCC. He is in his last year of eligibility at WWCC. WWCC will be playing the University of Idaho's JV team in the Kibbie Dome Friday, Sept. 26, at 3:00 p.m.

Chad is a senior at BSU, and started in BSU's first game. The Broncos will be at Pullman to meet the WSU Cougars Saturday, the 27th. BSU also returns to the Palouse on Nov. 22nd. It will be the state rivalry game between U of I and BSU.

Community Calendar Project Now Underway; Get Listings in Soon

The community calendar project, which is sponsored by the J-K Lion's Club, is in full swing. Subscribers are asked to contact Sharon Harris at 289-4622 if you have changes. The Club invites new subscribers. Money earned from the project goes back into the community.

Last year's project was installation of an underground sprinkling system and seeding new grass in the Kendrick Park. Park renovation is not yet complete, so every subscriber counts. While many communities charge up to $15.00 for their calendars, the cost of the calendar is still a very low $5.

Information needed is simply your family's names, birthdates (no year required), and anniversary (if you wish.) Information may be mailed to Box 88, Kendrick, ID 83537.

Council Asked for For One-Way Street

Concerned over the number of accidents and near-accidents in the north alley between 6th and 7th Street, (that's the north alley run from the Fire Hall to the Grange.) the city council has been asked to make this section a one-way street. Ray Snyder appeared before the council at its last meeting to make this request and has since gathered a number of signatures from local businessmen and concerned citizens in favor of such action.

The proposal would make this alley a one-way street, going west from behind the Grange to 6th St., and up 6th Street to Main Street (between the Park and Magnuson's Insurance.) There would be no entry off Main onto 6th and down the alley. Traffic would be permitted to enter 7th St. (between the Grange and the phone office.) Traffic on Main from that portion of 7th, (about half a block) would be permitted so Telecom trucks and equipment and Grange traffic would not have to go around the block to get back out to Main. Both the 6th and 7th Street entrances to the alley involved are nearly blind to traffic and the alley is narrow, creating a serious risk. It was also pointed out that creating this one-way section would also give the fire trucks and ambulance quicker and less risky access to Main.

Parking from the park restrooms down to Main would still be permitted, but would have to be diagonally aligned toward Main.

At 6:30 the group will move a few blocks away to J. D.'s Woodshed for a look at Jeff Didier's fine scroll work and other woodcraft enterprises. The general membership meeting is at 7 pm at the Country Haus restaurant, also in Cottonwood.

LCSC Proposes New Approach to Identifying Business Training Needs

By Frank Jacobson

At last week's Rural Partners meeting at Lewis-Clark State College, Mary Emery of the college proposed a new approach to identifying business training needs out in the small towns of North Central Idaho. Charged with getting help out to communities struggling to retain and expand businesses, the Small Business Development Center and Institute for Community Development have traditionally tried to second-guess what kinds of training and technical help business people need. They propose now to start the planning process at the grass roots level, in the communities themselves.

Bulldogs Outscore Kendrick 26-18, Deary Here Friday

Although the Genesee Bulldogs knocked the Kendrick Tigers from the unbeaten ranks last Friday evening at Kendrick, they had to come from behind to win 26-18. Kendrick dropped to 2-1 on the season and will host the Deary Mustangs Friday evening, Sept. 19.

Kendrick served notice in the second quarter that it wasn't last year's team when quarterback Rich Hitchcock and wide receiver Tony Hower teamed up to score on two pass plays, one for 42 yards and one for 44 yards to put the Tigers up 12-0 to startle the Bulldogs.

But the Bulldogs weren't down here to lose and Travis Grieger got the Bulldogs on the score board later the second quarter on a 1 yard run and Casey Schober, who was going to go on to put some real hurt on the Tigers in the second half, ran over for the extra points.

In the third quarter Schober made the first of his 3 touchdowns on a three yard run to give Genesee a 14-12 lead and then in the final quarter Schober put the game out of reach on runs of 92 and 73 yards.

Kendrick's Jody Brown put the final points of the game up in the fourth quarter with a 2-yard run but it was the Bulldogs' game 26-18. Genesee 0 8 6 12-26 Kendrick 0 12 0 6-18

Kendrick hosts the league's and possibly the state's toughest 8-man team Friday night when the Deary Mustangs come off the hill for a 7 o'clock contest.

Central to the new approach would be a community committee charged with maintaining an ongoing dialogue with retail and service business people in order to assess their needs for training and technical assistance. It is believed that local volunteers serving in this capacity can help Lewis-Clark College staff better plan and deliver the kinds of help that match what's going on out in the rural communities of our region. In this way, assistance can be tailored to the very specific needs of a community such as Kendrick-Juliaetta. Using this approach, it's up to the community to call for service.

The establishment of a committee of "locals" would answer some of the criticism directed at the Department of Commerce's original proposal to create "visitation committees." Business people are known to be reluctant to have "experts" poking into their operations. A committee of the sort proposed here would, it is assumed, involve local business people as well as other volunteers interested in seeing their town's economy improve. Such committees would be provided training in how to involve businesses in identifying their needs. The college would then provide the training and technical assistance identified locally.

If small business development is central to a Gem Community's plan for business retention and expansion, then that community should contact Mary Emery or Helen LeBoeuf-Binninger at the college if they're interested in exploring the possibility of this new approach. College staff anticipate that in time this approach can result in better networking on the regional level, including the use of an internet component. Kendrick-Juliaetta Community Development Association as a Gem Community team is invited to give some serious thought to this possibility.

Another Gem Community goal discussed at last week's meeting is that of economic diversification. Discussion last week focused on the value added approach to diversifying products within the forest industry. Speaking as coordinator of Central Idaho Woodnet out of Orofino; Malcolm Dell shared with great enthusiasm his vision of turning North Central Idaho into a value-added wood product community. With five chapters now in the network, Dell is looking forward to the first Annual Woodcraft Festival and Exhibition, to be held—where else—right here in Kendrick, thanks to the efforts of K-JCDA's own Phyllis Berg. The dates are September 26-27; the place, Kendrick City Park. Come on out to see how one imaginative group goes about economic diversification!

Speaking for the Idaho State Department of Commerce at last week's meeting of Rural Partners, Bob Ford stressed the need to make small businesses aware that help is available; however, it's up to them to ask for it. He feels the proposal from LCSC is a workable one, providing the scope of responsibility for local volunteers is limited. In addition, he would like to see some kind of financial incentive provided for them.

Rural Partners will next meet on January 12. The expectation is that LCSC staff will be prepared to flesh out their proposal in much greater detail. This will depend, of course, upon the reaction of Gem teams to the general outline of their plan as presented last week. One thing is clear: Sticking with the present system appears to be a losing proposition.

Do Your Homework
Before Attending a Parent-Teacher Conference

As a parent, you're concerned about your child's progress in school. Does your daughter get along well with her peers and teachers? Is your son struggling with math? What exactly do grades measure?

One way to find out is through a parent/teacher conference. Typically held two or three times a year, parent/teacher conferences allow both parties to share their observation on a student's school work. (An increasing number of schools also offer a conference prior to or shortly after the start of school to fill families in on academic and social goals, the curriculum and classroom procedures.)

Like anything else, the more effort you put into the conference, the more you'll get out of it.

Here are some suggestions from teachers:

Before the Conference
 —Talk with your child for his or her opinion on how school is going. Compare his or her views with the teacher's evaluation during the conference. Any misperceptions your child has could lead to significant surprises when the report cards arrive.

—Write down your questions in advance to keep the conference on track and professional.

—If possible, both parents should attend. Having both present builds a stronger partnership, and better communication, between home and school. If one parent can't attend, be sure the other one writes down any concerns to raise during the conference.

—Communicate any goal and expectations you have for your child with the teacher.

—If the teacher says something you don't understand, ask. Don't be embarrassed if you don't understand educational terminology.

—Ask questions about your child's academic, work and social skills. These are the three areas of most importance. From there you can go on to ask about the specifics of curriculum, grading, discipline policies and procedures, homework expectation and special projects.

—Find out what you as a parent can do at home to help your child do well at school. Before you leave, summarize the plans you and the teacher have made to help your child. This eliminates the chance of misunderstanding.

—Be prepared to talk about your child as a whole person, including his or her interests, activities and strengths outside school. You might also bring up significant family situations that could affect your child's performance at school.

Many teachers send parents a survey about their children before the conference. The survey supplements the teacher's knowledge about each child, and serves as a vital tool for discussion.

As Mauree Sanger, a Minnesota teacher, notes, "Sharing pertinent information is important. If I notice a child behaving differently and I know grandma is sick or a pet just died, I will react differently. But I can't do that if I don't know about it."

During the Conference
 —Be on time, and recognize the time limitations. Conferences may range from 20 to 40 minutes, but regardless of the length, the teacher probably has other parents waiting.

—Be positive. Approach the conference with a cooperative, not confrontational, attitude. Teachers want to work with you and your child.

After the Conference
 * If you have questions and concerns, contact the teacher.

* Discuss the conference with your child so he or she knows what to expect.

* Follow-up on your action plans immediately.

* Stay informed regarding your child's school work. Talk with your child about it, and keep in touch with the teacher. If you need to meet with the teacher before the next scheduled conference, set up an appointment.

Curb-Side Recycling in Kendrick each Thursday morning

In cooperation with the City of Kendrick, Dave Dean of Davey's Recycling, will be in Kendrick each Thursday morning to pick up recyclible items if placed at the curbside.

Here is what is being accepted at this time:
Newsprint
Magazines
Cardboard (corrugated & uncorrugated)
Clear Glass
Tin Cans
Aluminum Can
Plastics No. 1, No. 2 & Milk Jugs

THE FOLLOWING IS SUGGESTED:

- Please don't use plastic bags for recyclibles.
- Please have items out by 7:30 a. m. Thursdays
- It would help if you would rinse all cans and make sure they are empty. You do not have to take the labels off.
- Cardboard must be flattened. It would be very space saving if everything else was also flattened.

THANK YOU VERY MUCH

MRIs Provide a Window Into the Human Body

Whether it's your favorite athlete having a knee examined, a family member being tested for chronic headaches, or a child having a tumor checked for possible malignancy, magnetic resonance imaging—or MRI—offers a safe, painless and non-invasive way for doctors to look inside the human body and make accurate diagnoses. An MRI test employs a powerful magnet to align hydrogen atoms in the body. Then a radio frequency is introduced that gives the atoms extra energy. When the frequency is turned off, the atoms release that excess energy, producing a signal of their own. Receiver coils in the MRI system pick up those signals and transmit them to high-powered computers, which turn the signals into an image. The result is a highly detailed internal picture of the area being examined.

"An MRI produces an image that shows off soft tissue very well," says Petra Loman, lead MRI technologist at University of Washington Medical Center. "We can clearly see tumors, tendon and ligament injuries, bruises, blood vessels, the bone marrow, even nerves."

"An MRI has the added benefit of not using ionizing radiation like X-ray, and unlike having a computerized tomography (CT) scan done, patients can eat or drink whatever they want before an MRI procedure," she says.

Some preparation is needed before having an MRI test, however. Since a typical MRI system uses a magnet of 1.5 tesla—or 15,000 times the earth's magnetic field—patients need to remove any metal objects from their bodies, including watches, jewelry, loose change, belt buckles, or clothing with metal buttons.

"We screen patients very carefully to ensure that they don't have any foreign metal objects in or on their body," explains Loman. "We need to make alternative arrangements for those with cardiac pacemakers, neuro-stimulators, cochlear implants and aneurysm chips."

Patients are then taken into the exam room and placed on a table that slides into the large, tubular MRI system. Although the procedure is virtually painless, some experience anxiety from the loud noises made by the radio frequencies being turned on and off. Because the diameter of many of these machines is very small, larger people might feel cramped and others can get claustrophobic. A typical MRI scan can take anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour, Loman offers patients tips for relaxation.

"I often use a calming tone of voice with patients, letting them know what to expect, and suggest they keep their eyes closed and focus on something else, like a vacation or a movie," she says. Patients with more severe anxiety can be given a mild sedative, she adds.

For those who simply can't handle the confined space, newer MRI systems have been developed featuring a more open design. Although lower in magnetic strength, these machines—such as the one at University of Washington Medical Center—also produce quality images. They are particularly beneficial for children since a parent can lie with them during the procedure.

Among the newer uses for MRIs, says Loman, is neurography, or nerve imaging. This is helpful in deter-
